

Stomach Misery for Over Six Years

Read what Mr. Hoffman, landlord of the Webster Hotel, writes:

"I suffered misery and intense pains from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-na. The first few days treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from my stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-na I have regained my weight. I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better."—Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1909.

Mi-na stomach tablets relieve distress in five minutes. They act like magic. They are guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eructations, heartburn, dizziness, biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by Henry Evans, 1006 F. St. N.W., for 50 cents a large box.

NABUCO GOES HOME

Mayflower Carrying Remains of Dead Ambassador.

MILITARY HONORS GIVEN

Cruiser North Carolina, Escorted by Brazilian Warship, Will Convey Body From Hampton Roads.

With military and naval honors, the casket containing the body of the late Brazilian Ambassador, Nabuco, was removed today from the vault in Oak Hill cemetery, in this city, where it had been deposited since his death, and placed aboard the President's yacht Mayflower, to be conveyed to Brazil for interment.

Shortly after 1 o'clock the casket of bronze, weighing 1,600 pounds, was lifted from the vault by eight bodybearers, all non-commissioned officers of the army, and placed upon an artillery caisson draped with the Brazilian and American colors, and escorted by a squadron of cavalry from Fort Myer, under command of Capt. Carrard, started for the navy yard.

No Religious Ceremony.

There were no religious ceremonies. Elaborate services had been held at St. Matthew's Church at the time of the funeral.

The State Department was represented by Chandler Hale, third assistant secretary of state. The diplomatic body was represented in the persons of a special committee, appointed by the directors of the bureau of American republics, namely: Senor de la Barra, the Mexican ambassador; Senor Anibal Cruz, the Chilean minister; Senor Portella, the Argentine minister, and Mr. Chermont, charge of the Brazilian embassy.

Mayflower Under Way.

Arrived at the navy yard, the federal cortege was met by an additional escort of sailors and marines, the commandant of the yard and the officers of the Mayflower. To the strains of appropriate music by the Marine Band the casket was lifted from the caisson and conveyed aboard the Mayflower, where it was placed upon the main deck.

Transfer at Hampton Roads.

The vessel is due to arrive in Hampton Roads about 8 or 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. She will anchor in the roads. A naval tug will come alongside and remove the body and the funeral party to the armored cruiser North Carolina, where they will be received with full naval honors. The cruiser will get under way, then, as soon as possible for Rio de Janeiro. Secretary Chermont and the son of the ambassador will go as passengers on the North Carolina, and the son of the ambassador will return at once to Washington.

BY RAIL TO POINT LOOKOUT.

Charter Granted for Extension of Road From Mechanicsville.

Papers incorporating the Washington, Potomac and Chesapeake Railway Company have been filed with the secretary of state at Annapolis, Md.

The object of the company is to finish building the line of railroad from Mechanicsville, St. Mary county, to Point Lookout. This extension will connect Point Lookout with the main line of the company, and may mean a quicker service between this city and Norfolk.

Henry W. Watson of Philadelphia is backing the enterprise. It is said there is every prospect for the early construction of the road. The capital stock is fixed at $500,000.

Mr. Watson held the franchise a number of years, but took no steps toward building the road. In 1904 the Bucks County, Pa., Trust Company closed a mortgage on the property and acquired possession.

In the papers filed at Annapolis the statement is made that Mr. Watson again acquired possession of the property about two months ago. Associated with Mr. Watson are William Shippen Roney and Albert R. Roney of Pennsylvania, and Edgar Allen Poe and St. John Poe of Maryland.

An amendment to the law regulating the sale of poisons in Maryland will be introduced in the house at Annapolis by request. It provides that in addition to the present warning labels upon all packages or bottles containing poison, they shall be attached to the bottle or package a bell not less than one-fourth of an inch in diameter.

BALLINGER'S VIEWS

Not in Sympathy With Radical Conservationists.

ANNOUNCES HIS POLICY

Coal Enough in United States and
Alaska to Last 7,000 Years.

RESPONSIBILITY OF STATES

Their Obligation in Preventing Waste of Resources Greater Than That of Nation.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 16.—As ardent an advocate of wise conservation as the most radical, was the way in which Secretary Ballinger of the Interior Department in a speech before the state conservation convention today expressed his policy in regard to the public land question. "But," he added, "it must be wise conservation to appeal to me."

Secretary Ballinger declared himself out of sympathy with those radicals who fear that all natural resources are being used up without any consideration for future generations.

"Our country," he said, "is the richest of all in natural resources. Its soil, its minerals, its coal, its iron, its granite, its limestone, its waterpower and its climate, possess immeasurable wealth, and, if properly utilized, contain sufficient resources to care for all probable increase in the population of our country in the years to come."

He said that while "the doctrinaires figure that the coal deposits of the United States and Alaska will be exhausted in a period of about one hundred years, the fact is that, according to the production of coal in the United States at the close of 1908, only four-tenths of 1 per cent of the original supply of coal had been exhausted, leaving the apparent supply still available 96.6 per cent of the original supply, or coal enough to last, as some claim, for a period of 7,000 years."

Exaggerated Notions.

"After long indifference on the part of the people as to the public domain," he declared, "a deep concern has suddenly arisen respecting the remnant of the national estate, with a wholly exaggerated notion of what should be done with it by the government. There is much talk about the conservation of our national resources, and nebulous theories that sound good to the ear, but are impossible of practical application to existing conditions, are advanced. Between the hysteria that exists on the one side and the tendency to despise the public domain on the other, we will, it is hoped, be able to find the true policy of the government."

Secretary Ballinger expressed the opinion that "a greater obligation rests upon the states than upon the general government to inaugurate laws to prevent waste in the utilization of national resources." There has been a grossly exaggerated notion among some people, he declared, as to what the general government can do in conserving the natural resources that lie in the deposits of minerals and are contained in the soils and the streams. "For the most part, he pointed out, they have passed into private ownership and are under the municipal ownership of the states."

"It seems to me," he continued, "that we should not try to impose the whole burden of conservation on the general government, but leave it to the states and to the municipalities to work out, except in so far as national interference is necessary to protect national interests; and I want to be understood as opposed to the theory that because the state has not exercised to the full its powers of national interference, it is bound to do so. The national government must exercise them."

The national government, he said, cannot "enter the state and dictate the means or method of the development of its streams and rivers, except in so far as their navigation is concerned." Wise conservation, in his opinion, implied "as full and free a development of our natural resources as is consistent with our civilization and needs."

Speedy Survey of Areas.

"What the public domain needs today is a speedy survey of all available areas for settlement, an adequate and scientific classification of the remainder of the public lands and such legislation as will enable a determination of all private entries and rights in the interest of the bona fide claimant without unreasonable delay, and, above all, protection against the monopolization or waste of our natural resources."

Mr. Ballinger declared that the present laws and methods of disposal of deposits of coal, phosphates, all minerals and other resources, he added, "are utterly impractical, either from the standpoint of the locator or that of the government. And no adequate method exists," he added, "for controlling or supervising hydro-electric power produced from power plants installed on government water power sites. No number of men can comply with the present law and finance a coal mine on the public domain on 640 acres of land except under extremely favorable conditions. The absurdity of the law in itself invited fraud and indirect methods of evading its provisions. It is hoped Congress will furnish the interior department with the necessary machinery to guard safely and properly the public interests in its ultimate disposition."
